Prospects of the East

The majority of our American cousins, together with a great many other clear headed people in the world, are firm in the belief that "Westward the star of Empire takes its way" Until recently we have seen no reason to doubt the correctness of that high toned sentiment, but events are transpiring which seem to prove that the gem of all constellations after having traveled as far West from Greenwich as is possible on a round globe, is rapidly approaching the East The constantly increasing liberality with which the rulers and the people of the vast and populous empires of China and Japan look upon Europeans, their eager thirst after and rapid adoption of many of our customs and implements, their delight at every increase in the facilities for trade, especially here in Japan, promise rapid advancement in the great work of Europeanizing the East It is no longer evidence of insanity or drivelling idiocy to hint the opening of all ports, the freest intercourse with the people in all parts of these two empires—in fact the complete unsealing of the great book which has been so long sealed To prophesy that he European population of these countries will be trebled within five years can no longer be taken as evidence that the prophet is laboring under the influence of sake, samshu or any other bewildering beverage Sturdy Englishmen, gay Frenchmen, restless Yankees, and phlegmatic Dutchmen, will flock hither, and strive, in a generous sort of rivalry, for the advancement of their interests, and they will be cordially assisted by the people of the land

The advantages of free and friendly communication with these people are looked upon as so great, that even the slow moving Austrians have waked up to them By the last mail we have intelligence that an expedition has been fitted out by Francis Joseph for the purpose of forming acquaintance with the Japanese The expedition will be commanded by one of the most distinguished among Austrian naval officers, and will include among its members some of the best representatives of the Austrian Empire. This extensive step on the part of a sovereign who, it is imagined, has been laboring under heavy financial difficulties for a long series of years, is one of the best evidences that the people of Europe look on this part of the world as the part where the human family is to be benefitted in years to come

The happy consummation will be perhaps longer delayed in China than in Japan, for the people of these Islands are undoubtedly less bigoted and suspicious, and more energetic than those of the Celestial Empire, but even there a proposition for the construction of an electric telegraph—one of the implements of the highest enlightenment—has met with favorable consideration from some of the hard headed but high officials.

There is only a single speck in this Eastern horizon. We refer to the Corean difficulty. When the spring opens, the French will naturally be anxious to have a proper settlement with the unfortunate Coreans for the affair at the opening of winter, and considering the spirit of the bearers of the tri color, we cannot doubt that the result will be the opening of Corea—"peaceably if possible, forcibly if must"

Looking at the situation in the East, in all its different lights, therefore, we can but think that the populous east coast of Asia is in a fair way to become Europeanized, and that such an event would be hailed with no greater joy than that of Japan and China themselves.—Japanese Herald.

A NEW HAMPSHIRE MURDERER ARRESTED IN ILLINOIS—HIS DEPARTURE FROM THE SCENE OF HIS BLOODY CRIME.—On the night of December 8th, 1866, a brutal murder was committed in the village of Franconia, New Hampshire. The victim, named George Maxwell, had his head severed from his body with an axe, after, which the house was robbed of all its valuables. A team was taken from the stable, and with this the murderer drove to Gorham, a distance of forty miles, and then took the Grand Trunk railway to Canada. An English miner, named Samuel Mills, was suspected of the foul deed, and a reward of $500 was offered by the Selectmen of Francona for his arrest This induced the detectives of Boston to take the matter in hand Mills being a miner, it was thought probable that he would resort to a mining district, and to all such places handbills were forwarded, giving a full description of his person and manners This led to his arrest, a few days since, in Galena, in this State Information of the capture was immediately forwarded to Boston, and detectives S. T. Goodwin and Moses Sargeant, on the reception of the news, immediately started for the west The prisoner meanwhile stoutly declared his innocence, and almost convinced the Galena authorities that they had made a mistake, However, a short acquaintance with the Boston detectives made him virtually acknowledge his guilt The murder was committed when the victim was eating his supper, and, incredible as it may seem, the murderer actually finished the repast, after cutting off the man's head. This was established by the fact that bloody finger marks were found upon a knife and fork, some biscuits, a cup and other accessories of the table. This, of course, could but lead to the conclusion that the man's hands were covered with blood, and, as he still wore the same clothes when captured in which he was attired while committing the murder, detective Goodwin, after the first introduction, turned the man's pant aleons pockets inside out, and behold! they were clotted with blood This discovery took all his former nonchalance from the villian. He became as white as a sheet, and staggering against a wall, had barely sufficient strength to call for a glass of water. Although the murderer had erased all marks of blood from the outside of his garments, he had failed to clean his pockets, which had become bloody from thrusting his hands into them Mills was kept at the Central Station last night, and at an early hour this morning, in company with his Boston friends, started for the scene of his crime. He came to this country about three years ago, and has since worked in the mines at Dover, New Jersey, at Racine, Wisconsin, and at the Lake Superior mines At the time of the murder he was at work in the Lisbon gold mine, about one hundred miles from Franconia He has a wife living at Cambourne, Cornwall county, England His parents live in London He is about 28 years of age, dark, sallow complexion low forehead, very high cheek bones, dark straight hair, and very large and sensual mouth—the very ideal of a ruffian and desperado.—Chicago Times

PLAIN TALK FROM ANDY JOHNSON'S HOME.—The patriotic editor of the Greenville New Era thus talks out on negro suffrage It is bold talk to come from Johnson's home We commend it to "Moses," the uncircumcised

We don't know exactly what you mean by "nigger equality," nor do we care, as Radicals we used the negro to whip and conquer armed rebels, to protect and defend the nation against its bitterest enemies, and as Radicals and the true friends of the nation still we can use the negro again at the ballot box, and continue to use him against our enemies and the enemies of the best interests, the peace, perpetuity and integrity of the Government He was the true, tried and trusted friend of the Union man in the hours of darkest peril We trusted him then infinitely more than the rebel, and are not afraid to try him again

Union men, Radical Union men, taught him how to aim his musket and where to throw his bullets, and if necessary they can show him how to vote Rebels and Copperheads know how he will vote, hence their intense opposition to his enfranchisement When the rights of loyal men security to State and General Government, justice to a party or race, demand the action of our Legislators, let that action be taken boldly and fearlessly

BRUTALITY OF THE TURKS.—How the Turks carry on the war against the Cretans is demonstrated by an incident related in a letter from Athens The Christians in Selino were informed by the Consuls at Canea, that European ships would appear off Sugia, and take such families away as choose to leave the island In consequence, nearly 3,000 women and children flocked thither, anxiously awaiting the arrival of the promised vessels A large steamer appeared, carrying the English flag, and was cheered by those on shore when suddenly the steamer turned out to be a Turkish ship of war, opened her ports and fired her broadsides into the helpless and unarmed crowds Over one hundred and fifty women and children were killed outright, and a much larger number more or less seriously wounded. Such wanton acts of cruelty and barbarism must hasten the termination of Turkish dominion in Europe.—N. Y. Times.

Assumption of the State War Debts by the General Government

We have heretofore referred to the proposition which has been made and repeatedly renewed in Congress to authorize the General Government to assume the debts incurred by the loyal States in paying bounties, etc., and have stated such objections to the proposition as occurred to us The following are the material portions of the bill introduced in the House by Mr Blaine authorizing this measure It is entitled

A bill to reimburse the States that have furnished troops to the Union army for advances made and expenses incurred in raising the same

The preamble sets forth as follows:

WHEREAS The States that furnished troops to the Union army during the late war were subjected to very heavy expenses, amounting in the aggregate to four hundred and seventy five millions of dollars, a large proportion of which has assumed the form of oppressive debt, and whereas this entire outlay was made for the common cause of the Union, and therefore constitutes an equitable claim on the common treasury of the nation; therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled That there shall be reimbursed by the United States to each of the States that furnished troops to the Union army, and also to the several Territories and the District of Columbia, a sum equal to fifty-five dollars for each man duly enlisted into the military or naval service of the United States during the late war, the total number being reduced to a uniform standard of three years' service.

SEC 2. And be it further enacted, That the amounts to be thus reimbursed shall be in registered bonds of the United States, of not less than one thousand dollars each, bearing interest at the rate of five per centum per annum, and redeemable at the pleasure of the United States, after twenty years from date Said bonds shall be dated July 1, 1867, and interest thereafter shall be payable on the first day of January and first day of July in each year, and interest to be payable and said bonds to be redeemable out of moneys to be hereafter appropriated by Congress.

Gen. Phil Sheridan in Pittsburg—His View of what is Needed by the South.

General Sheridan was in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, on the 15th of February. An editor of the Pittsburg Gazette called upon him, and thus state the result of the interview

In conversation the General is free, suave and intelligent Singular as it may seem, he is earnestly and bitterly opposed to war, thinks that civil rule should at all times be preferred to military rule, but not under all circumstances From his conversation we inferred that his diagnosis of the Southern patient indicates the sword, that an excrescence remains after the four years of treatment through which they have already gone that can only be safely removed by the knife The great misfortune of the Southernor is that he believes a disparity exists in favor of Southern intelligence. He has been taught that "one rebel did not equal ten Yankees in battle," but his faith in the superiority of his intellect still remains While acknowledging his cause hopeless, he defended he maintains its justice This is the Southerner's great and mischievous error, and it tends more than all else to delay restoration.

Wide-spread poverty, destitution and desolation pervades the South. Pictures of differing in some sections which have reached us, are no creations of imagination to stir the North to an exercise of charity. They are true. Gaunt poverty, suffering and want for the actual necessaries of life, are with many of the Southern people. Nearly all of the plantations of Louisiana are mortgaged to their full value, and if thrown upon the market would not discharge the incumbrances with which they are burdened. To raise any money increased liens is therefore impossible The Southern people have not, as yet, been properly educated in the Northern and Western idea of immigration. They look upon the immigrant, not in the proper light, regarding him only as a menial or laborer. They must learn to sub divide their large plantations, so that one family may live comfortably and grow rich on a hundred acres of land, whereas in days gone by a single individual or family lorded it over three, four, five or six hundred acres, of which vast estate but of which a small portion was under cultivation. All this must be changed The South must have roads, school houses, churches and factories.

She must get them as Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota have acquired them—by filling up her waste lands with an intelligent and industrious yeomanry, no matter of what nativity. With those her capacities cannot be estimated The oligarchs of the South must imbibe more of the philosophy, skill and enterprise of the North, ere they can vie with the North in wealth and solid progress. The General referred to other matters which have escaped our memory.

WHAT IS A DOLLAR?—The New York Independent has the following notice of what a dollar is:

The legal tender notes of the Government are promises to pay dollars, and some people seem to entertain the belief that this means to pay gold and silver, though nothing is said in relation to either of those metals A paper dollar is a paper dollar, it will pay any debt of either a public or private nature. No one is compelled to receive it in payment for merchandise of any kind, though it cannot be refused in the payment of a debt. Any one anxious for specie payment may decline receiving anything but gold, or silver or copper, or platina, or iron, or any other metal in exchange for his goods; and any one who thinks it a proper thing to do may decline giving anything but gold and silver in exchange for what he buys The paper dollars of the Government may easily be converted into gold or silver, or copper, just as they may be converted into beef or bread, or lumber or shooting To call them incontrovertible, as Mr McCulloch does, is simply false—because they can be converted into anything The paper dollar is our standard value, and gold and silver vary in price the same as other commodities do The gold dollar is worth eight cents more than the silver dollar, and although it is supposed to represent one hundred cents, it is really worth about three hundreds of the one cent coins The only dollars, therefore, which are really what they pretend to be, are the legal tender paper dollars—Those paper dollars have answered all the purposes for which a currency was needed during the trials of the last six years, and there is no reason why they should not continue to do so for six years more, or for sixty, if the need should exist for them

LABOR DISCUSSED.—The Owyhee Avalanche has the following on the Chinese labor question

The recent riotous attacks upon the Chinese laborers of San Francisco have produced much discussion of the Chinese labor question in the California and Nevada journals. Societies have been formed and conventions and resolutions and speeches given to the public against the Chinese receiving employment, and also to discourage further Chinese immigration. Politicians are trying to convert it into an issue at the coming election Up till the great riot, the common complaint in California was a lack of laborers, and societies were formed to promote immigration While many now vehemently denounce the employment of Chinese, their conduct seems to indicate that their opposition is grounded in partisan designs Their arguments are over zealous for consistency which discloses dishonesty They revolve and declare that every Chinaman employed deprives one white man of labor and in this way admit the labor of each equal—which is generally unbelieved, and often in their zeal for arguments assert that the white laborers will do much more labor in a better manner So inconsistent are men on this question as to employ those they profess to oppose The price of labor will in the future as in the past be governed by its demand and kind as compared to the supply This will ever be the case despite riots and demagogues and societies to the contrary

A Bridgeport (Conn) man bought a ton of coal and received a ton and a half On going to the dealer he was told that half a ton was given to the purchaser of every tenth ton.

HUNGARIAN ART.—The purchase in Hungary for the British Museum, of a large collection of interesting objects and works of art are spoken of as more than probable.

MUGBY JUNCTION.—A London correspondent writes as follows of Mugby Junction, not the Christmas story, but the veritable Junction:

Being on my travels, "Mugby" was the first place I stopped at after I left London I was in no mood of refreshment, but I thought I would just ask for something in order to see how "the Missis" and the bandolining young ladies looked after Mr Dickens' wigging. There certainly was no change in the quantity of the refreshments. The counter was set out as usual with stale pastry and sawdust sandwiches and the—ah, ah, ah, ah—the sherry—O my eye, my eye, as the Boy says The Missis, too had still that terrible glare in her eye which is so suggestive of "surveying the line through a transparent medium composed of your head end body" But she was more attentive, and two of the bandolining young ladies actually got in each other's way in the struggle to serve me with a cup of tea The Missis took the money, and actually thanked me It was quite evident to every one that the satire had taken effect. The Missis looked painfully conscious that she had become a notoriety She said that the passengers were talking about her, and recognising the original of the picture in the Christmas number.

She was uneasy and nervous, so much so that she filled the wine glass to overflowing. Mr Dickens' satire has not been a bad thing for Mugby Junction in one respect Troops of passengers alight from the station, purchase refreshments, just for the sake of seeing the Missis and the bandolining young ladies I think I recognized the Boy at Mugby He was in the service of, not the refreshment department, but the news agents, and was walking up and down the platform, calling out "Mugby Junction!" with evident enjoyment of the knowledge that he was doing so in the hearing of the Missis and the young ladies, and in the very presence of the stale pastry and the sawdust sandwiches. All the people on the platform and in the carriages seemed to be shouldering at the joke I should fancy it is not very pleasant for the Missis and young ladies just now.

A man, whose name and residence is suppressed out of delicacy to ward his family, became reduced in circumstances, owing to the indorsing a note for a brother, who became bankrupt, and the misfortune preyed upon his mind, and he became gloomy and apparently threatened to become insane. About a month since, his family became aware that some mysterious task was claiming his attention in a tool and work house near one of his barns. To all inquiries as to the nature of his work, he returned an evasive answer, but kept steadily on. Sometimes he would allow two or three days to pass by without visiting the shop, but during such times he would be more than usually vacant and cast down. One day last week he suddenly appeared before his family dressed with more than usual care, and stated that he intended paying a business visit to his brother—to be absent about two or three days He would listen to no suggestion that some of the family should accompany him, and went away Next morning, curiosity prompted a peep into the tool house to see what had made him so busy. His wife, accompanied by one of her daughters, accordingly forced open the door when they found the husband and father stone dead and laid out in a coffin! The mother fell to the floor in a swoon, and the daughter ran terrified from the spot. A speedy investigation brought to light a note on the shop bench, which stated that the deceased had taken his own life by swallowing prussic acid, and that the coffin was the work of his own hands Trouble had rendered his life unendurable, and hence the rash act. Death must have been very speedy, for the body could hardly have been "laid out" with more precision. Such methodical coolness in the work of self destruction was never before recorded—a man constructing his own coffin, and dressing himself for the grave!

"SOCIAL EQUALITY"—In a letter to the Indianapolis Journal, in reference to some recent troubles in that city, on account of the attempted exclusion of colored people from his lecture, Fred Douglass thus tersely sums up the whole question of "social equality:"

"You represent me as demanding social equality for the negro. I must ask, is this fair? What is social equality? Does it consist of being in the same hall, and on the same floor, listening to the same lecture? Do you regard every man as socially equal with you because you are on the same floor at church, market, hall or elsewhere? Do not character, wealth and intelligence control the matter of social relations? When we meet in a public hall, do not we meet as citizens, as the public, rich and poor, noble and ignoble, standing upon a common footing? And is not this, well? But is it not quite another thing to force me into association with all I meet as equal citizens in street or hall? My parlor, and my table, and my hand are my own, and I can choose my own friends and associates, and you have the same right; but when you go into a public hall you venture beyond your parlor limits, and your right ends where that of another man begins."

We see a paragraph in one of our exchanges that seems to look as if right in umbrellas were to be established—an innovation upon life long precedent A man was arrested and held for stealing an umbrella! It

Our New Acquisition of Territory.

The purchase by our Government of the Russian North American Possessions is the most valuable acquisition of territory obtained by the United States since the cession of California The negotiation was entirely unexpected as no hint of it had escaped from any quarter Considering the great value of this acquisition, the sum paid for it—seven millions of dollars—must be allowed to be small indeed We paid ten millions for Arizona, a piece of unproductive territory that can never be of as great value to the United States as this new purchase From our situation and the requirements of our commerce, these possessions will be of more importance to this country than they could be to any other except Great Britain From this obvious fact arises the excitement of the representatives of the British Government in relation to the purchase The cession of this vast territory to the United States will confer on our people and on our commerce very great advantages, as it will give us control of the valuable fishing and fur trade of the North Pacific ocean The southern extremity of this territory reaches to latitude 54° 40', the point which was originally claimed by our Government as the northern boundary line of Oregon—a claim that was weakly yielded to Great Britain by the Administration of Mr Polk. But we have reached "fifty four forty" at last, though from the opposite direction The main part of the territory comprises that portion of the continent which lies west of longitude 141° W. A long narrow belt of coast with a large number of islands, commencing at latitude 60° N. and extending south between the ocean and British America for near four hundred miles, form a most important part of the territory The entire area is estimated at 331,875 square miles. Of course the climate of all except the southern portion of the territory is very cold, and the soil sterile In the south some of the valleys are productive Along the coast the country is very mountainous, and some of the peaks are volcanic. There is a second, and perhaps a third range of mountains in the interior. In the south part there are extensive sounds, all of which afford excellent navigation for the largest vessels. Some of these sounds, or friths, set in a considerable distance inland There is an abundance of the best pine and fir timber on the low hills, and the lumber interests of that region may in time prove of considerable value The white population of the country is estimated at ten or fifteen thousand, and the Indians at four or five times that number. New Archangel, on Sitka Island, is the principal town, and contains a population of 1,500. This place is the headquarters of the fur companies, who employ a large number of vessels and men in this profitable trade The proximity of these possessions to the whale and other important fisheries in the North Pacific, will also make them of great value to the United States British Columbia is now squeezed between two portions of our territory and may soon desire the abrogation of the treaty of 1846.

The Rejected.

The other day when the editor of the "organ" was in a boastful mood he gave a pledge that whenever his party should manifest a contempt for his paper, he should certainly "give place to a more fitting man." People like to see pledges which are publicly given scrupulously kept, and therefore it is not surprising that there should be some inquiry among the faithful to know why the editor of the "organ" does not retire. He has been repudiated by his party generally throughout the State; yet in defiance of their wishes he still holds on. With a single exception, every Democratic paper in Oregon has pronounced against him and the "organ," and has manifested a contempt for both. They reject the "organ's" teachings, repudiate its doctrines in the name of their party, and protest that it is not an exponent of Democratic principles.' They rarely speak of its editor with respect, and always indignantly deny his pretensions to party leadership. Almost every allusion they make to the "organ" is couched in contemptuous language Never before has there been an instance in this State where so general a contempt has been manifested for a paper by its own party. It is high time that its editor should fulfill his promise of "giving place to a more fitting man." For the sake of decency, let him not outrage his party further. If he has no regard for his own promises, he should at least have sufficient respect for the wishes of his party to quit a position which nearly all of its accredited organs pronounce him unfit to hold.

JOHNSONISM —It will be remembered,—though probably by many persons but barely remembered—that the President two or three months ago submitted a series of amendments to the Constitution as the basis of a compromise on the reconstruction question. These amendments were evidently written by the colossal Ego himself, as they bear his rotary mark of composition. One of them was in the words following:

Sec 1. No State, under the Constitution, has a right, of its own will, to renounce its place in, or to withdraw from, the Union, nor has the Federal Government any right to eject a State from the Union, or to deprive it of its equal suffrage in the Senate, or of representation in the House of Representatives. The Union, under the Constitution, shall be perpetual.

The Cincinnati Gazette thinks that if this proposed amendment had been delivered by the President verbally, it would have been done in the following characteristic style

No State, nu'r 'e Const'ushun, or—over 'e Con st'uh'n, or—anywhar, ex ar right, ny his own will, or uv—ny will, or uv—enybody's will ter 'nounce is place in, nor ter wi'draw from, nor ter go outer, nor to 'fuse to stay in, or Un'n, nor has enybody of trait'rs, segin on 'e verge of Gov'mt, enlin himself a Cong'ss, 'e right ter eject, or ter—bject, ny is own will, or—enybody's will, ony State outer or inter 'e Un'n, 'e Un'n sh'll be per pet perpet—per—per—patabl (ble!) of is own will, or—enybody's will, en I tell you misser Senators en I tell you, misser Chase, en you misser Lyons, en you misser Moe—misser Mus—missor m—m—Mussyer (blo), en I tell ev'body, all pow'r comes from 'e peop'l, if 'se 's with two hund'rd un fifty dol'rs, un can write 'er name; un I'm a pleb'n, un I own niggers, en who's sur'd for Un'n like me? un Tenn'see nev'r nev'r was out er Un'n, un sinter goin out or Un'n of is own will, or enybody's will.

This is the true Johnsonese. The Gazette is clearly correct in its conception of that style of oratory.

It is said that Henry Ward Beecher will soon speak again on national affairs A year ago, in his address on the occasion of the veto of the Freedmen's Bureau bill, to the surprise of his many friends throughout the country, he placed himself in the attitude of an apologist and defender of the President. It is said that he will now favor impeachment. It is deeply to be regretted that men of undoubted talent will destroy their powers for usefulness by pursuing a course which loses them the respect of people of intelligence and candor

The Springfield Mo, Patriot, demolishes the romance of Wild Bill's career, as sketched by Major Nichols in the January number of Harper's Monthly "Wild Bill" has been the hero of many a skirmish, and was par excellence the scout of the plains, but the extraordinary exploits attributed to him, and his horse, have but little foundation except in the imagination of the writer

The Stockton (Cal) Independent complains that while idlers are holding meetings throughout the State denouncing Chinese labor, the Vallejo and Marysville Railroad is tugging for want of laborers. The Independent pertinently asks "why don't the 'dissafected' quit their blabbering and go to work?"

The notorious Indiana Copperhead, Dan Voorhees, has been down to New Orleans delighting the reconstructed of that city with a speech that exactly accorded with their views He took occasion to promise them that the Chief Magistrate would do great things for their protection He said

You need not fear the territorial scheme If successful elsewhere, it cannot be sanctioned by the Supreme Court Will the President enforce it Not an If I know Andrew Johnson, he will endeavor to protect you

A little further on he informed his audience

Whenever you see his line of policy clearly marked out you may conclude it safe for a Southern man to be found there He stands as a barrier to those who have rended you

This has the merit of directness but it is what everybody knew before The rebels were quick enough to understand that it was 'safe to be found" supporting the President a policy

The 'organ' wants to know if we would have spoken of two certain individuals in such contemptuous terms if they had been Yankee born" The editor of the 'organ' is himself "Yankee born," and we don't think we have reframed on this account from speaking of him in such terms as he deserves New England has let loose upon the world some very sorry specimens of humanity, who are not entitled to respect simply because their motherland has produced so large a number of better men Therefore this individual need not think he is respectable because he is "Yankee born."

Skamania County Union Convention

Pursuant to call, a Convention of the Union Party of Skamania County was held at the school house, at Lower Cascades, on Saturday, the 30th day of March, 1867, for the purpose of electing two delegates to the Union Senatorial Convention to be held at Vancouver, on the 10th day of April next Convention organized by electing S M Hamilton Chairman, and J A Kerns Secretary On motion, proceeded to the election of delegates, and Edward Coply and John Jaggy were elected A Union County Committee of three was elected, viz J. CAUSE OF THE BREAKING OF RAILROAD AXLES.—Mr Wedding, a machinist in Berlin, has lately contradicted the common opinion that railroad axles break because by continuous vibration the iron takes a crystalline structure. His first doubts originated by examining the fracture of an iron beam in his factory, which had not been exposed to the least shock of vibration, and yet was as crystalline as the broken car axles He tested his opinion by experiments. An axle was supported in the middle and on end, the other end left free and a heavy weight suspended on it, by this arrangement the upper fibres were, of course, extended and the lower ones compressed, the axle was then turned round, by which operation, without shock or vibration, compressions and extensions were produced which finally destroyed the cohesion of the iron and broke the beams in about four hours, and he inferred from this that, when the fracture shows a crystalline structure, it pre-exists in the iron Mr Wedding exhibited specimens of different fracture, and remarked that the use of iron would indeed be a most dangerous thing if the common theory was true, that vibrations and shocks change the molecular structure of the iron, make it crystalline, brittle, and finally cause its failure. He holds that good iron will remain good and strong, and will last without breaking

Two Parisian women fought a duel the other day, with small swords, in the Bois de Boulogne One of them was slightly wounded, and the other fainted at the sight of her adversary's blood. They afterwards kissed, and resolved to die for each other

The New Haven Journal says that measles is now considered one of the classics It has been introduced to nearly every class in Yale College within the last few weeks, and is now shunned as much as the hardest Greek and Latin lessons

The Maine Legislature has decided against any modifications of the law which prohibits intermarriage of different races

The cession of Russian America and adjacent islands to the United States creates quite an excitement amongst the public, but KOHN & FISHEL, No 114 Front street, are creating a greater excitement amongst the high priced houses in this city by letting the public know that they are selling good Davis'& Jones white shirts for $2 50 Shaker flannel undershirts and drawers $1 50, the best Merino undershirts and drawers $1 to $1 50, fine French cassimere pants, $5, splendid cassimere business coats $8 to $12, good suits from $8 to $25, magnificent black dress suits $30, and all other goods at comparatively low prices

Directors:

JOHN PARROTT CHAS B McLANE,
WM C RALSTON A HAYWARD,
LOUIS A CARNETT

LOUIS A CARNETT President and Manager
JOHN HEWSTON Jr Chemist and Superintendent

THIS COMPANY HAVING GREATLY enlarged their Refining Works and introduced many other important improvements, are pleased to announce that they feel warranted in again reducing materially their terms of doing business

THE TARIFF OF CHARGES

Which they now submit to the public—considered with reference to the cost of material and labor—is lower than in any other part of the world and secures to the mining interest of this coast an important increase in both the mining and commercial value of bullion

Their charges hereafter will be as follows:

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED GOLD BARS

One eighth of one per cent, (heretofore a quarter) for all amounts over $1,000, and two dollars for any smaller sum Returns made in twenty four hours

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED SILVER BARS

Two dollars for the gold contained, up to $1 000, and one-eighth of one per cent, for all amounts over that sum, and one per cent on the silver contained Returns made in twenty four hours

FOR REFINING DEPOSITS MADE FOR COIN OR FINE BARS

On bullion under 500 parts gold, 2 cents per ounce
On bullion from 500 @ 600 parts gold, 4 cents per ounce
On bullion from 600 @ 750 parts gold, 6 cents per ounce
On bullion from 750 @ 940 parts gold, 8 cents per ounce

Above 950 the only charge will be for coinage But there will be no charge for refining less than two dollars

FOR COINING GOLD.

This charge will be the same as at the Mint—a half of one per cent—and which is paid by us to that institution But there will be no charge in future for making fine gold or silver bars from bullion refined by us

RETURNS IN COIN IN FORTY EIGHT HOURS.

Silver contained in deposits for coin will be accounted for at the same rate customary at the Mint

Gold bars of other Assayers, in gobs standing will be cashed by us at the highest market rates

Dust and bullion can be forwarded to us from any part of the country, and returns made through Wells, Fargo & Co's Express

CHARGES AT U S BRANCH MINT

For the convenience of those not familiar with the terms of the Mint, we publish the tariff of charges now in force at that institution

For refining bullion under 300 parts gold, 3 cents per ounce
For refining bullion from 300 @ 500 parts gold, 5 cents per ounce.
For refining bullion from 500 @ 750 parts gold 7 cents per ounce.
For refining bullion from 750 @ 830 parts gold, 11 cents per ounce
For refining bullion from 830 @ 940 parts gold, 14 cents per ounce
The charge for coinage is half of one per cent, and the charge for making fine silver bars, the same

Comparing the net value of deposits for coinage, with the proceeds of unparted gold bars sold in the market—assuming that the bars have cost ½ of one per cent.—they must be sold at the following par rates to equal the return which would have been made had they been deposited for coinage:

850 par to equal Mint return, at refining charge of 14 cents
846 par to equal Mint return, at refining charge of 14 cents
865 par to equal San Francisco Assay & Refining Works return, at refining charge of 8 cents mh1d2p3m

A VALUABLE INVENTION.

THE UNDERSIGNED CALLS THE ATTENTION of smokers to the celebrated

PATENT DOUBLE-TUBE PIPES

Which he is now importing and which are recommended to all smokers Its peculiar merit consists in the use of TWO TUBES the one for the smoke alone and the other for the passage of the saliva and the nicotine to the cup at the bottom whence it is discharged The smoke being thus kept clear of contact with the saliva, is always delicious and pure in its odor and the collected matter removed, the pipe will always remain entirely reliable It gives to the smoker the pure exhilaration of the tobacco free from its noxious nicotine, it possesses merits never before obtained in pipes

A leading eastern journal says of this pipe "Its merits are incontestably proved by the fact that it is permanently superceding all others in use"

Another great advantage in this pipe is that the smoker can easily take it to pieces If the draught becomes obstructed you can withdraw the stem and re open the upper tube (if the tobacco will not emptying it of tobacco. Fan sale (wholesale and retail) at

THE PORTLAND AND TUALATIN ROAD.—Mr. Embree of Tualatin Plains, was in this city, yesterday, on business connected with the Portland and Tualatin road. He says that thus far the people of the Plains have not manifested that disposition to favor readily in the stock of the company, urging as an excuse that Portland being more vitally interested than they, has not subscribed as they had reason to expect. They think Portland ought to do three-quarters of the work at least, and they point to the names of the subscriptions in this city as an indication that we are not disposed to do our share. The fact is, Portland is the most deeply interested in this road and it does not speak well for her public spirit that only a few thousand of the fifty thousand required, has been offered, as yet. The liberties of Portland has already given encouragement to a movement set on foot at St. Helens, to open a road from Centerville to Tomlinson's Landing, formerly called Baker's Landing, on the Columbia river, a few miles above St. Helens. St. Helens and the farmers near the Columbia river terminus, are offering to give liberal sums to this enterprise, and the people of the Plains, west of the base line, discouraged by the lack of interest which Portland manifests in her road, are already listening with a favorable ear to the proposition for a rival road. Did Portland but manifest a disposition to do what it can and ought to do, the rival road above mentioned could never be inaugurated, but as the matter now stands, it may be inaugurated, and as the matter now stands, it may be that the despised little village of St. Helens will steal a march upon the metropolis and secure the valuable trade of the Plains. The penny-wisdom and pound-foolishness of Portland are sometimes most unaccountable.

HOW TO MAKE ICE.—The scarcity of ice the coming season will probably make the articles rather expensive in the market. We know of none coming or to come. In the absence of the regular article of commerce, the following process may be made available, if any one knows a freezer or where the machine can be procured: "A simple instrument for making artificial ice is now manufactured in Paris, by which a beautiful cylinder of ice is produced in four minutes, or a bottle of wine or other article can be reduced to the freezing point of water in the same receptacle. The instrument consists of two metallic cylinders one within the other, the space between them being devoted to the freezing mixture, and the interior of the smaller cylinder to the water or other article to be frozen. These being introduced, the cover is put on and the cylinder is rolled to and fro on a table by the hand. The ice is then produced formerly of one part each of water, sal-ammoniac and saltpetre, but for the sal-ammoniac a cheaper salt not mentioned, is now substituted, and the mixture is put up in quantities sufficient to make 7 pounds of ice (if we reckon correctly from the indirect way we went before us) for 50 centimes or less than 1 dime. The instrument costs 10 francs. It is called the glacier [illegible]."

FISH.—This article which for some time past has been in active demand at high figures, has been imported principally from the Sandwich Islands. During the late trip of the Dragon party we learn that some beautiful specimens of the plant were obtained, and are now on exhibition at Salem. A single root has been imported with a view of testing it in this climate. Those who have examined it are of the opinion that the climate is too dry; at least the plant exhibits that appearance. Several horticulturists have carefully examined it, and it is the object of attraction for many admiring friends.

PREACHING ALL THE WEEK.—Rev. Mr. Earle, encouraged by the success of the revival meetings of the last week, has consented to remain here throughout this week and will preach every day at the Presbyterian church, at the hours of 3 and 7 P. Doland, after being ... in the morning for drunkenness, went off and tried the experiment once again, and was found in the afternoon drunk and disorderly on Front street. He was arrested and will be up this morning.

...ENE CRIMES.—Yesterday was the day for opening the bids to furnish the Government one hundred and fifty cavalry horses. We hear that there were but few bids offered, but the proposals, some of them, were quite reasonable. We have no positive information as to whose bid was accepted, though it is said Messrs. Oppenheimer & Lazel had the lowest bid considered responsible.

THE GRISTMILLERS' VERDICT LIST.—9,231 qr sks flour, 2,000 boxes apples, 84 gunnies bacon, 83 dry hides, 30 boxes eggs, 10 pkgs malse, 2 cases furs, 40 pkgs lard, 41 rolls leather, 1 gunny malse, 61 gunnies onions 1981½ bbls dried apples, 201 bdls shingles, 5 bales sheepskins, 1,250 bbls staves, 4105 bbls, 52 kegs butter, 193 sks wheat, 11 boxes bottles, 2 bbls butter, 15 horses.

YOUNG MEN'S LAW ASSOCIATION.—This Society has not had a meeting for two or three weeks. An attempt was made last Friday evening to get a quorum together for the purpose of adjourning to some definite day next fall, but it failed. We learn that the members will be requested to meet next Friday night at the usual place for the above purpose.

TREASURE SHIPMENT.—The treasure shipped by the Oriflamme yesterday, was as follows:

Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express	$27,000
Ogden, Smith Bros	10,000
Ladd & Tilton	5,000
Total	$42,000

MEETING OF THE LADIES' RELIEF SOCIETY.—The ladies of the "Relief Society" are requested to meet in the basement of the Presbyterian Church at half-past twelve ... to-day.

APPRECIATED AND REWARDED.—A number of those who were present at the discussion before the "Germania" Literary Society, on Sunday evening, were so well pleased with the really able argument made by Mr. Carl B. Schlesinger, that, to show their appreciation, they presented him, last evening, with one of Messrs Dorflar's fine silk hats. Mr. S. had most cheerfully engineered in the decision of the judges on Sunday night. He certainly has reason to feel flattered with the testimonial of last evening.

FOR SAN FRANCISCO.—A number of Salem people left here yesterday per steamer Oriflamme for San Francisco. A still larger number will go to-day by the Idaho, among whom are Secretary May, J. H. Nicklin and wife, Arthur Nicklin, Mr. L. S. Morgan, Mrs. L. S. Dyar, Miss Lizzie Boise and others.

LARCENY.—On Friday night, the 13th inst., a set of harness was stolen from Mr. M. Daniel, living on Little Butte creek. The thief was tracked some distance, but no definite trace was found.—Sentinel.

The thief probably took the trace along with the rest of the harness. That's what's the matter.

SENT TO JAIL.—S. H. Miller's case was examined yesterday afternoon before Justice Anderson, the charge being the larceny of a gold belt buckle from Mrs. Nellie Kingsbury. The trial concluded, the justice fined him $25, in default of which he was sent to jail.

INFORMATION WANTED.—Jack Johnson, of Kansas City, Missouri, wants information of Frank Johnson and Charles Sun who left Kansas City in 1849 for the Pacific coast. A rather cold track, but somebody may know where they are.

STEAMER FOR EUGENE CITY.—The P. T. Co. will dispatch a steamer this morning from Oregon City to Eugene City, upon the arrival of the Alert.

WILLAMETTE FREIGHTS.—Arrived per Alert, Monday, April 1st: 596 boxes apples, 2,964 qr sks flour, 58 skins, and 240 bags feed.

FAST DAY.—To-morrow, Wednesday, has been agreed upon by the christians of this city as a day of fasting and prayer.

TREASURE RECEIPTS.—By the Cascades boat last evening, Wells, Fargo & Co. received $10,000 in treasure.

CIVILIZATION.—The act of civilizing or the state of being civilized; the state of being refined in manners from the grossness of savage life and improved in arts and learning. The study of dress is one of the refined arts; and the most learned people are not above being pleased with fine suits of nicely fitting clothes. Barman Bros., the great clothing dealers of the North Pacific coast, have suits that cannot fail to suit the most fastidious. You can find Barman Bros. at their establishment, corner of Morrison and Front, or at the one on the river side between Artigoni's and the Exchange Hotel.

NEVER FAILING SAFETY AND SUCCESS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP is a safe and certain remedy for all diseases with which children are afflicted during the process of teething. It has stood the test of thirty years. Never known to fail. Gives rest to the mother and relief to the child. Cures wind colic and regulates the bowels. Thirty-five cents a bottle. Hostetter, Smith & Dean, Agents for the Pacific coast.

"A SLIGHT COLD," COUGHS.—How are aware of the importance of checking a cough, or "slight cold," in its first stage: that which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected, soon attacks the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give sure and almost immediate relief. "The Troches" have proved their efficacy by a test of many years, and have received testimonials from eminent men who have used them.

Wherever we get our meals at any time in the day! At the LAFAYETTE RESTAURANT, First street, below Stark, and nearly opposite Wells, Fargo & Co.

The ladies are in a glow of delight over the Family Dye Colors from the celebrated manufactory of Howe & Stevens. They say the colors surpass anything at the dye-houses, and are very much cheaper.

PERRY DAVIS' VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER.

THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE OF THE AGE!

Pain Killer taken internally, should be adulterated with milk or water, and sweetened with sugar if desired, or made into a syrup with molasses. For a cough, a few drops on sugar eaten will be more effective than anything else. For sore throat, gargle the throat with a mixture of Pain Killer and water, and relief is immediate and the cure positive.

It should not be forgotten that the Pain Killer is equally as good to take internally as to use externally. Each bottle is wrapped with full directions for its use. Dyspepsia can be and is cured every day by the use of Perry Davis' Pain Killer. This is the most wonderful and valuable medicine ever known for this disease. Its action upon the system is entirely different from any other preparation known. The patient, while taking this medicine, may eat anything the appetite craves. Sold by all medicine dealers. mh2idawlm

THE GLORY OF MAN IS STRENGTH.—Therefore the nervous and debilitated should immediately use HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU.

Bronchitis or Chronic Sore Throat.—It is attended with irritation of the bronchial tubes, which convey the air we breathe into the lungs. The irritation produces sore throat, hoarseness, coughing, and sometimes spitting of matter streaked with blood. If it is neglected it will extend down to the lungs, and settles into confirmed consumption. ALLAN'S LUNG BALSAM will be found a most valuable remedy for curing this disease, and prevent its running into the consumption. For sale by dealers in family medicine generally. ia20

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU and IMPROVED ROSE WASH cures secret and delicate disorders in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience and no exposure. It is pleasant in taste and odor, immediate in its action, and free from all injurious properties.

Far Away

Upon the shore
Of Evermore
We sport like children at their play
And gather shells
Where sinks and swells
The mighty sea from far away

Upon that beach
Nor voice nor speech
Doth things intelligible say
But through our souls
A whisper rolls
That comes to us from far away

Into our ears
The voice of years
Comes deeper, deeper day by day
We stop to hear,
As it draws near
Its awfulness from far away

At what it tells
We drop the shells
We were so full of yesterday,
And pick no more
Upon that shore
But dream of brighter far away

And o'er that tide,
Far out and wide,
The yearnings of our souls do stray.
We long to go
We do not know
Where it may be, but far away

The mighty deep
Doth slowly creep
Upon the shore where we did play
The very sand
Where we did stand
A moment since, sweeps far away

Our playmates all,
Beyond our call,
Are passing hence, as we too may,
Unto that shore
Of Evermore,
Beyond the boundless far away

We'll trust the wave,
And Him to save,
Beneath whose feet as marble lay
The rolling deep,
For He can keep
Our souls in that dim far away

Thrilling Adventure in a Chicago Elevator

[From Beadle's Monthly]

"If it hadn't been for England and Chicago, I don't think my left sleeve would now be empty There's a riddle you can't guess Perhaps you'll not think much of my riddle when the story's told, but you mustn't forget that it cost me my arm, and you'd place a big price on your arm—you I upon a little bit of your little finger!

"My parents, buxom, hale and hearty couple, with a heartiness of life and living that sweetened their food with wholesome flavor, were small farmers in England. They were poor and had six children. Children are the teeth of poverty and bite hard.

"Even now I cannot decide whether I was right or wrong in going to another country. At that time we heard lots of stories of how people thrived in America, how they had a little ease and comfort and independence in that country before they died.

"It was all arranged among ourselves, father, out of his little savings, gave me money which I was to return if I got along finely in my new home. But I did not intend to set out on this long and lonesome journey without taking with me as my wife, a little fair-haired lass; as modest and industrious a girl as could be found in the country. This lass was Bessie Tillotte. One day I spoke out my love

"'Bessie dear, will you go to America with me? Do you love me enough for that?'

"She put her arms about my neck and looked up into my face with her great hazel eyes.

"'Robert,' said she, 'I will go with thee any where, and be glad all the time.' Then she kissed me.

"'But, Bessie girl, I am poor, you know, and there's the great ocean to be crossed. When that's betwixt us and the old folks, we'll be among strangers, and I have much to suffer. There's hard work to be done, and worst of all there's fearful loneliness and homelessness. Eh! Bess, can you bear hunger in many a way?'

"'Try me, I'll go with thee, Bob, and help thee all I can, and be a good wife.' I knew she was as true as steel.

"One night going home from a visit to Bess, I met Tom Brinton. He was waiting for me at the big elm just at the turn in the road. An idle fellow, given to beer drinking and low companions, he had more money than any one in his station in life. Where he got his money was uncertain.—He raced in horses and jockeying, he had a knack of tickling the pride of owners of nice nags in the neighborhood. He was not a handsome fellow by any means; but his smart ways and speeches made him a favorite with many of both sexes. The way I came to know him was because we lived within a mile of each other, and met on the highways and at country fairs and frolics. I had seen him, too, a half dozen times at Tillotte's house during previous years. I had never liked him, only endured him, knowing him as a very regular fellow, a good wrestler, and no mean player with his fists, in fact, a bully, as you call that kind of a man in this country. He was sitting on a log by the roadside.

"'Good evening, Bob,' he said, as I came opposite him. 'Going away soon, I hear.'

"'A fortnight hence,' I replied, not stopping in my walk. Seeing this, he jumped up from the log and came after me.

"'Stop, Bob,' he commanded. 'Stop, I've nothing to say to you, and I want to say it to-night, now, because I'm going away in the morning.'

"'Well, what is it?' I said, stopping, 'I'm in a hurry.'

"'Yes, yes! And you are truly going to America?' he asked once more, in a musing sort of way and looking at me from toe to head. 'And—and confound you! is Bess going with you?'

"'Yes!'

"'Do you know, Bob Campbell, that I loved that girl, that I love her now? and she said—

"'There, there, don't tell me your secrets,' I cried, with a wish in my heart to get peaceably away from the fellow, who, it was plain to me, had been drinking.

"'But I will tell thee Why not listen quietly until I've done? I loved her and told her so And she refused me, but did not tell me that she loved you. That I found out yesterday. She threw me off for your baby face and the few pounds you've begged or—

"'Stop!' I commanded, pushing him away from me; 'I'll hear no more such vile stuff,' and walked off. But I had not gone three steps when I felt his arms clasped around my waist, holding my arms close to my side.

"'You shall hear me, curse you!' he shouted, close to my ear. 'I've waited for you, to tell you that I hate you—hate you because you are going to take away the only woman on earth I can love. You needn't try to get away. Be still or I'll kill you. So long as I live you will have an enemy. You'd better remember that.'

"Just then I heard the rumbling of a wagon coming toward us. He heard it, too, and for a minute stood and listened. Then, with an oath, he suddenly whirled me around and struck me three heavy blows full in the face with his fist, knocking me senseless to the ground. When I opened my eyes again, a farmer, a neighbor of ours, had my head on his knee, and was wiping the blood from my face, the rascal had given me one blow that had cut open my cheek, and left a mark until this day. Tom Brinton had run like a deer across the fields, the farmer said. Anyhow that was the last seen of him in the neighborhood so long as I remained. Bess and I were married and came to America, as happy and loving a couple as ever crossed the waters. When I landed in New York my pocket was picked of all my money—the few pounds I had saved to buy me a little land and I was friendless. It was an awful time that followed, sir.

"After this misfortune I tried to obtain work Now and then I got a job that gave me enough to buy us a little food. But what could I, a farmer and a farmer's son, do in a great city that needed artisans, not farmers? It was a hard and bitter struggle for life I had just got a place as porter, at good wages, when—when—my darling Bessie died.

"After Bessie's death," he continued, with a shudder, "I took to liquor just to stop thinking, to have an easy spell. But I only made matters worse, and finally, after a touch of the tremens, I went on board ship and sailed to Cape Town, in Africa. It was five years before I got back to America. I was tired of sailing and of life, but not having the cowardice to commit suicide, though I was always wishing myself dead, I struggled along, as of old, to get my daily bread. Drifting hither and thither, working a week in one place, a month in another, I finally brought up as a laborer in an elevator in Chicago. It is not nice work, I must say, but one grows to be proud of the great things that dot the wharves along the nasty creek. To me the elevator always seemed a monster, restless with hungry life, and we poor fellows did nothing but tend to its wants, running up and down stairs through clouds of choking dust, and deafened with the din of rattling machinery—no light job I can assure you, seeing that an elevator is seven, eight and ten stories high, and big enough to hold the houses of a small village. Ah! they are wonderful things, those elevators! and now that I am away from them I feel the strength of their size, and what a little thing I was in such a place. Then the rattle of the cups going up or down with their fill of grain made music to my ears, and started many a queer thought through my mind as I went through my hours of day or night work. It was strange to see how quick these armies of banded cups would drink to emptiness a car or vessel loaded with grain, and carry it up to giddy hights to be tumbled into huge bins These bins, sir, are forty to fifty feet deep, and funnel shaped at the bottom, where there is a sort of valve or gate, which, when opened, lets the grain into a spout If a gate is lowered when a bin has six or seven thousand bushels in it, you can judge, sir that there would be a whirlpool that would suck down the strongest man to a horrible death Wonderful, terrible monsters these elevators, with their humps of houses on their roofs their awkward spouts their dizzy hights and dismal, dusty chasms of empty bins It makes me sick to think of them now

He really did look a little whiter in the face and nervously fingered the empty sleeve of his jacket but he was over with the feeling in a minute, and went on with his story

"I had been at work about a week in one of the largest of those elevators, when one afternoon I was sent in company with another laborer—a big whiskered, swearing, ruffian fellow—to tend to a bin that was about to be emptied We were sitting on the edge of the bin waiting for the grain to run, when my companion, who seemed to be under the influence of liquor, called out

"'I say, Mike!'

"As I have said, the fellow was a ruffian in appearance, he seemed to have quite a liking for me, as he tried to be with me in my work as much as possible, but I couldn't bear him. He knew my name well enough and it angered me to have him call me in this way, so I said, sharply

"'My name is not Mike!'

"'How should I know?' he asked looking very angrily in my face, as if he wished to make me quarrel with him

"'You have heard it more than once,' I said 'You know very well what it is Joe, and there's no sense in giving a man a name as doesn't belong to him'

"'Then don't call me Joe! That ain't my name It's a counterfeit I'm Tom, which is a better name'

"He had a piece of chalk in his hand, and he gan to print with it on the big beam where we were sitting, T-o-m, T-o-m, T-o-m, he scratched in large letters, scraggly letters, all the while looking at me from under his heavy eyebrows Then he made a B, and rubbed his hands sore as it as soon as it was made

"'Bob, it's a long way down there,' pointing into the half filled bin

"'Twenty feet, perhaps'

"'Twouldn't kill a man, the fall, eh?' moving closer to me.

"'No.'

"'But it's as good as water, to drown him, providing that the grain be moving and the dust and chaff flying?'

"'He wouldn't live long, that is sure'

"'Then go down there,' he yelled, giving me a blow and a push that hurled me headlong from my seat 'Go down there! stay there! die there! rot there! Bob Campbell, and don't forget when you're dying, that Tom Brinton sent you.'

"The fall did not hurt me a bit, and I began to crawl toward the rope ladder hanging against the side of the bin, thanking God that the grain had not begun to move, else I'd be a dead man in no time. But as soon as the ruffian saw what I was after, he hurried round and pulled up the ladder out of my reach.

"'Let that alone!' I shouted, feeling how little hope of escape I had with the ladder out of my reach. He laughed tauntingly at me and flung the ropes over a beam

"'Do you mean to murder me?' I cried.

"'No, I'm going to leave you there, Bob. You have fallen in, you see, That'll be the verdict when they find your body. You'll want your shovel, man, to make the thing look natural. I'll throw it to you in a minute.'

"I felt quite sure that it was so dark in the bin that he could not see me very plainly, if at all, and that he would try to hit me with the shovel I crawled close to the side, with one cheek against the wood, looking up I could see him directly above me, peering down into the gloom, and with the shovel in his outstretched arm ready to spear me as if I were a fish. Then followed a stillness that continued for five minutes, during which he stood on his guard. Suddenly I heard a muffled rattle of machinery and felt a strange power pulling at my feet, while my whole body seemed to be gliding gently down a bottomless pit. In an instant I knew what was happening.

"The grain was running.

"I madly flung out my arms, and my fingers clutched one of the upright beams. As I drew myself up against the receding torrent I heard a laugh above me and the words

"'Remember Bessie Tillott, Bob Campbell, and that I loved her, and the words I spoke to you by the big elm Good bye!'"

"When I looked up the man was gone from my sight. I don't exactly know how I managed to climb that huge beam. I think there were nails here and there that helped my feet and hands, for after I was rescued my body was found to be covered from head to foot with gashes or scratches. Anyhow slowly and painfully I managed to reach the top, and threw my arm over the very edge of the bin and gasped for breath. Then when I was so near to safety, to hope, to life, I felt a horrible, sickening blow upon my arm—a blow from something neither dull nor sharp. I seemed to feel the cutting of the flesh and to hear the breaking of the bone. The arm, battered and broken, lost its grasp, and I fell back into the darkness and horror of the bin. Hardly had I touched the yielding wheat when my shovel was thrown from above and struck within a few inches of my head. Though my arm hurt me terribly I didn't faint. I was helpless. The dust was stifling. The grain was whirling and hissing as it slid toward the vortex a few feet distant. I heard the murmur of machinery in motion and the rushing sound of the wheat as it rushed into the spout. Where I lay the grain had not yet begun to move into the little whirlpool, but I knew it would only be a minute or two before I should be tossing and struggling in that treacherous quicksand, and then, stifled, mutilated and dead at the spout The dust seemed to circle above and leave me a little air to gasp.

"Lying thus hopeless and helpless, a carelessness of death came upon me. My life came to me again in all its details, its joys and sorrows. I had visions of green fields, and heard the soft gurgle of brooks, and the songs of birds, and the rustling of leaves. Then Bessie's sweet face, as it was when we were married, smiling and pretty with dimples, seemed to be above and close to mine as if waiting for a kiss as in olden time before she was taken from me. I forgot all else but her face. I had only a consciousness that I was going to her, that she was waiting for my release that she might go with me on the last great journey. It seemed to me as if the great relief would never come and give to me my darling.

"I must have been growing unconscious, I think, for a sudden throb of pain in my arm robbed me of my wife's face and brought back the old feeling of resistance against death. I felt that I was going downward, gently but irresistibly; that every grain beneath me was moving and shifting, and slowly descending. The circle of the whirlpool had reached me and was dragging me down to torture and to death I must live It was horrible agony of soul and body, sir. I screamed for help, but the dust entering my mouth, nose and eyes, strangled and blined me. I looked for the shovel It had disappeared I was going too Maimed and gasping for breath, I fought against that power that was slowly but surely dragging me down I plunged my arm deep into the wheat and tried to pull myself up In the dismal murky light of this hideous den I struggled as but few men have ever struggled I was a giant in my battle for life I thought no more of my broken arm. I was burning with heat, parched with thirst, blinded and choked with the fine dust, but I fought and shrieked for help all the time. In my fierceness I tore my clothes from my body and flung them away and the grains of wheat scraped my wounds and pierced my naked flesh as I tried to spring forward, but nothing hurt me, not even my arm

"Hard as I struggled I could not get clean away from the whirlpool. If I leaped forward or crawled a little way over the treacherous surface. I found when I stopped that I was swiftly sliding back again to the old place It seemed as if I struggled in this way for hours, yet I accomplished nothing Tired and breathless I looked around and felt sure that in less than three minutes I should be in the spout and a dead man My efforts were in vain There was a certain circle beyond which I could not go Once the thought came into my mind that, to save myself from the horrors of the death before me, I had better open a vein and bleed to death, but I could not find my knife, and had I found it I might not have been able to use it Well, I saw everything plainly There was no hope for me I must die, and must look and wait for my death When hope deserted me, a kind of resignation to my fate succeeded, and I closed my eyes wearily, never thinking to open them again

"Gradually my body slid downward The noise of the grain rushing through the valve or grate became louder and louder, the sliding dust was thicker and heavier A thousand unseen, irresistible forces were drawing me to destruction Suddenly my body fell several feet I felt the tremendous suction of the whirlpool. The grain crept up my legs, it reached and pressed heavily upon my breast and back as if to squeeze the life out of me, it ascended higher and clasped my throat Then I closed my eyes and waited death I no longer feared its terrors

"At this moment I felt that there was a strange silence, even in my half conscious condition I realized a change in my surroundings. The dust began to settle. I realized what had happened.

"The valve was closed.

"As the very gate of death opened to receive me, there was an obstacle, and I fainted with joy When I became conscious again, I heard a voice crying out

"'Is any body down there?' said this voice That question was twice repeated before I could answer, and then so faintly, that it was a husky whisper.

"'It's all humbug, a false alarm, Jim,' said another voice 'We are fooling away time by traveling up and down these twenty stories We can't stop work for such nonsense'

"'It's not a humbug,' said the one who had first spoken 'You saw as well as I, the shovel, and hat, and skirt come through the spout There's a man to follow, this way or that Hillo, there!'

"It seemed to me as if I had the nightmare so hard did I try to speak out but I didn't make a noise Yet when I heard them going away leaving me to my horrible death, the noise in me got the better of my throat, and I yelled so that I myself was frightened The men came back.

"'I knew he was there,' said Jim 'Are you hurt man?' Of course he is or he would not be there Where the devil is the ladder? That looks strange—it's hanging over the beam. Give me the rope and lantern'

"I saw the light, a blessed star of relief, come slowly down against the wall of the bin a little later I was rained, as tenderly as possible, to the top of the bin and thence carried to the earth A surgeon was soon obtained He looked at my arm that was making me cry with pain

"'Mortification Amputation' was the judgment, and the arm was cut off That is all," said my guest, drinking his liquor and rising from his seat

And what has become of Tom Brinton?' I asked as he reached the door

"I am looking for him," he answered, with the old ugly look about the eyes and mouth, and he stalked out of the door into the night

Below are some of the many testimonials

This is to certify that I, John B Judwan, was blind for over nine years and I tried all means of a cure, and had many doctors, and all of no effect, and I spent all the means I had Finally, I had to become a county charge, and when I was taken to Dr G W Brown, and obtained my cure to him, and misfortune, he at once commenced to treat my eyes and now I am well, and commend all those that are suffering with diseases of the eyes to call on Dr G W Brown This the reason why I do this is to let suffering humanity know where they can be cured J B JODWAN

This is to certify that my daughter was almost blind for over seven years, and was doctored by other physicians without obtaining any relief, when finally I took her to Dr G W Brown, who examined her case, and at once began to give her treatment, and her sight has been entirely restored I do this to let those who are suffering with diseases of the eyes know where they can obtain a cure It has been three years since her eyes were cured, and they are yet sound

THOMAS LIVINGSTON,
Dear Creek Precinct, Douglas county, Oregon.

This is to certify that I was blind for over four months, and almost blind for one year and a half, I tried several eye doctors but received no benefit, I had almost given my case up as hopeless when fortunately I heard of Dr G W Brown, now of Salem. I was induced to try him; he performed a surgical operation on my eyes and gave me treatment I soon began to recover, and in a short time I was perfectly cured. I do this in justice to one who rescued me from a fate worse than death, and also for the benefit of those who are laboring under similar afflictions that they may know where they can get relief It is now about eight months since my eyes were cured and they still remain good I can see to read the finest print without difficulty, and my eyes can bear the strongest light without pain.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgence, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid features, tainted and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies ere that they are cursed for and cured before it be too late Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, pubishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Hollow countenance, darkness under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots unsteady gait, aversion to society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, cough, consumption night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If seldom or not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure Dr G will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the Sani Fruciosa quacks

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure or make no charge

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co
